Lawrence “Rabbit” Kennedy

Lawrence “Rabbit” Kennedy was from the small town of Smithville, Mississippi, in Monroe County. He grew up with so little, as his family struggled in poverty. In October of 1940, Kennedy walked from his hometown to the city of Tupelo where he caught a train to begin his journey of becoming a soldier in the United States Army. Kennedy served in World War II and the Vietnam War, and ended his 35 years of dedication in the United States Army as a Command Sergeant Major. Kennedy is also the most decorated soldier in the United States Army with 4 Legions of Merit and 30 Air Medals. Lawrence “Rabbit” Kennedy served his state and his country with honor, dedication and valor.

Interesting Facts:

- The town of D’Lo, Mississippi, sent proportionally more men to serve in World War II than any other town in the country, which was literally every eligible man in town.
- Ingalls Shipbuilding has been building ships for our military for over 72 years, which contributed to the many efforts that fought for the freedoms that we have today. Ingalls Shipbuilding is located in Pascagoula, Mississippi. Ingalls Shipbuilding is the largest manufacturing employer in Mississippi and a major contributor to the economic growth of the state.
- The USS Cole, a Navy ship, was built by Ingalls Shipbuilding and, on October 12, 2000, it was bombed in a terrorist attack. The men and women on board the USS Cole that day characterize freedom. Some of the heroes on board the USS Cole did not survive that day and paid the ultimate price for our freedom.
